

SCIENCE & TECHNOLOGY

Our meetings generally include a short PowerPoint presentation followed by a round-up of science news items. We are an informal, friendly group and questions are welcome at any time. If you want to give a talk you don't need to be an expert — all you need is an interest you'd like to share. In the summer we usually organise a couple of outings.

The group is open to anyone with a curiosity for science or technology. Some members are retired scientists or engineers, and it's great to draw on their experience. Others have no scientific background at all — everyone simply enjoys learning more about how the world works, from life and the universe to the tools and innovations that shape modern society.
